

From: Darryl Ross <darrylondunlin@gmail.com>

Sent: September 30, 2017 3:24 PM

To: hongvanden2012@outlook.com

Subject: re:

Dear Hongyue and Hui,

I regret to inform you that I will be giving notice today. My move out date will be the last day of November. (I will leave the notice in your mailbox later today).

I really love the house and the location, but ongoing legal bills have made it unaffordable. For example, I will not be able to pay my next rent payment until October 6th. (I apologize, and hope that is ok).

You have been wonderful landlords. Extremely understanding, and supportive.

I will be sure to clean and stage the house and help with showings whenever needed.

One question I do have has to do with the year-end inspection. Mattamy should do it, since the house is past one year now. I'm also happy to help and coordinate that. For example, they will repair cracks and nails that pop out, but they don't paint. I can paint the spots they repair, and try to be available when work needs to be done.

Again, I appreciate all that you have done, and wish I did not have to leave.

Best,

Darryl

From: Todd Ross tross@seraband.com
Subject: Re: Financial Stuff
Date: December 15, 2015 at 12:35 PM
To: Darryl Ross darrylondunlin@gmail.com
Cc: Cynthia.McLaughlin@cse-cst.gc.ca Cynthia.McLaughlin@CSE-CST.GC.CA

TR

Hi, Darryl,

Thanks for having us.. that was delicious! I agree, we should make a regular thing - maybe once a month - out of dinner - vary the location.

I agree that leasing keeps payments down, as you are only 'buying' part of the car's value. But plan your mileage allowance carefully. Overages are hideously expensive ($0.45 or more per km) , and so is early lease termination. These fees can easily run into 1000s of dollars. Maintenance, both mechanical and cosmetic, is often a contractual obligation. You may be expected to 'make good' any damage the car suffers. This often includes paint scrapes, upholstery tears, and similar small items as well as anything not covered by the warranty.

Sooo... some variables to think about. But if you're like most of us, your car will be reasonably taken care of, these potential issues will not become real ones, and leasing will work out to be a good deal.

As per the car financing: sure, we're on board for that - up to a reasonable max liability. Let's find out what the numbers are & go from there.

BTW, I know it's tough to ask these things of us. Remember that Cindy, I and all of the rest of us are ready to support you as best we can.

Love,
Todd.

On Tue, 12/15/2015 09:59 AM, Darryl Ross <darrylondunlin@gmail.com> wrote:

Hi Todd,

It was great having you guys over on Sunday - we should do that more often!

I'm trying to get my financial situation sorted out as best I can, for now. I won't know how much debt I'll have until the house is sold, but Cynthia and I have agreed try selling privately, which could save 10-15k, and maybe even get us close to zero net loss.

I did agree to give her the van, in exchange for half the value of it (it was part of a bigger negotiation). Because I have a decent salary, my monthly costs are ok - it's the overall debt I'm carrying that I want to try to reduce. So I figured if I use the money she gives me to pay down debt (credit card or line of credit), and get a lease or finance a car at 0.49-0.99% interest, I'll be doing better. I'm still not sure if I should finance or lease though. For now, I need to keep the payments down, so leasing seems to make sense. Any thoughts?

That said, I don't know if I'll be able to get a lease on my own, given my current situation. If that's the case, would you guys be willing to co-sign?

Darryl

From: Todd Ross tross@seraband.com
Subject: Re: Just checking in...
Date: November 7, 2016 at 7:09 PM
To: Darryl Ross darrylundunlin@gmail.com

TR

Cindy's on board for the 2k, but we will insist on going through your financial situation with you beforehand. You will need to commit to make some major changes, including moving if that proves necessary. Are you OK with these terms?

Cheers,
Todd

Todd Ross
Network Design Specialist
Seraband Corporation
6527 Marina Drive, Manotick, Ontario K4M 1B3
Tel: 613-863-8014

---

From: Todd Ross
Sent: Monday, November 7, 2016 15:25
To: Darryl Ross
Subject: Re: Just checking in...

On my way now. Be there in about 1/2 hr.

Todd Ross
Network Design Specialist
Seraband Corporation
6527 Marina Drive, Manotick, Ontario K4M 1B3
Tel: 613-863-8014

---

From: Darryl Ross
Sent: Monday, November 7, 2016 13:17
To: Todd Ross
Subject: Re: Just checking in...

Thanks, I'll see you then,

Darryl

On Nov 7, 2016, at 12:15 PM, Todd Ross <tross@seraband.com> wrote:

Can do. Will drop by on the way home - 4pm-ish.

Todd Ross
Network Design Specialist
Seraband Corporation
6527 Marina Drive, Manotick, Ontario K4M 1B3
Tel: 613-863-8014

---

From: Darryl Ross
Sent: Monday, November 7, 2016 11:31
To: Todd Ross
Subject: Re: Just checking in...

Hey,

Do you have any time to chat later this afternoon, or maybe stop by on your way home for a visit? (I'd try to meet you, but I'm stuck at home today)

From: tross@seraband.com
Subject: FW: One more thing :)
Date: May 17, 2017 at 1:50 PM
To: Darryl Ross darrylundunlin@gmail.com

Darryl,

The events of the last few days have been hard on all of us , as we struggle to do what is right for you. To you, it may look like the rest of the family is working against you, and have little sympathy for your concerns.

Here is an unedited email chain from Angie and Kevin that reveals where our hearts are. Hopefully you can find some reassurance in it.

/Todd

Sent from Mail for Windows 10

---

From: KEVIN.ROUNDING@forces.gc.ca
Sent: May 17, 2017 1:36 PM
To: angie.hush@gmail.com; tross@seraband.com
Subject: RE: One more thing :)

I totally agree. That has been my assessment regarding treatment from the onset. And interesting that it comes from the source. Good call Angie – glad you were able to reach out. Although everyone knows that a friend of a friend really means you. So now CAS will come knocking on our door. ;) hahaha

I think C would have a pretty hard time claiming that D is unstable... especially when they pull out the trump card – that C has been using D's benefits to get anti-depressants and anti-anxiety drugs, herself.

I think D's narrative is far better than anything C can concoct.

Guy gets a divorce from a crazy ex-wife. She makes unfounded and irreparable accusations against this guy. Ones so hurtful that this guy is unable to psychologically get past them. She's so controlling and manipulative over the next year that it drives this guy to "escape". This coping mechanism gets the better of him. He has a wake-up call one day w/ the help of a terrific support network. He recognizes his mental health and addiction issues. He decides to quit drinking, seek treatment for his addictions and get help for his mental state. And this guy eventually gets better for the sake of his girls.

Meanwhile, the crazy ex-wife has withheld his children for no reason. She's make several false and unfounded claims to police, CHEO, and CAS. She's harassing his family. She's lying to everyone about her mental state. She's lied to the courts about her separation agreement. She spirals out of control anytime this guy makes a reasonable request under his legal rights. She even allows her 14 yr old son to sleep in the same bed with her 5 yr old daughter.

Which one would you give custody to?

From: Seraband tross@seraband.com

Subject: Re: Boo!

Date: November 27, 2015 at 6:08 AM

To: Darryl Ross darrylundunlin@gmail.com, Todd Ross todd.ross@seraband.com, Cynthia McLaughlin cindy@seraband.com, Angie Russell angie.hush@gmail.com, denyseross@gmail.com, Trevor Kathnelson tkathnelson@gmail.com, kasey young youngk7150@gmail.com

S

What an incredibly vindictive little bitch! And that's what it is, of course: pure malice for having exposed her string of false accusations for what they are.

So: no more trust, no more collaboration, no further negotiation.

And, just out of curiosity: what would happen if you said that you were not comfortable with the kids being in her custody? After all, she's the one being dishonest here...

Todd Ross
Network Design Specialist
Seraband Corporation
6527 Marina Drive, Manotick, Ontario K4M 1B3
Tel: 613-863-8014

Original Message

From: Darryl Ross

Sent: Thursday, November 26, 2015 22:10

To: Todd Ross; Cynthia McLaughlin; Angie Russell; denyseross@gmail.com; Trevor Kathnelson; kasey young

Subject: Boo!

Wooooo-hooooo..... Booooo!

Ok, so the good news is that my girls are sound asleep in their room. They are sleeping like babies. And I'm sitting in a rocking chair in the room with them as I type this. (Well, to be honest, Alice is tossing and turning, but that would only ruin the image that I hope to present. And Charlotte is snoring. And she just farted.)

The bad news is that I had to go to school early, face a hostile principal, and watch Cynthia storm into the school before Charlotte even got out of her class. It's a long story, but the 'deal' that we agreed to yesterday was a ploy. A strategy. They strung me along, told me that it was what they wanted, and then at 9 pm last night faxed my lawyer a note saying that Cynthia is not comfortable letting the girls stay overnight with me. But by that time we had upheld our end of the bargain, and dropped the urgent motion we had before the court.

Just to recap, I've been accused of truly horrendous crimes. Those claims were examined by the police, by the Children's aid society, and by CHEO. Those claims were found to be baseless. I met with the CAS case worker and she told me that she sees no reason to withhold or restrict my access to the girls. Cynthia's lawyer assured us that as soon as the Children's Aid Society said that there are no concerns, we could move to a shared parenting plan.

Well, lo and behold, when all the shit was shovelled out of the way, there was... you guessed it... more shit. (That metaphor is not as effective for those of you who are currently changing diapers, and so literally wiping shit. But still, I think it's an effective literary device.)

Luckily by then, on the advice of my lawyer, we were safely ensconced in our home with chains on the door and a new code programmed into the garage door opener. So we're safe, but also in a kind of safe-house. (And we just built a ginger bread house!) It's not the relaxing and carefree weekend with the girls that I had hoped for, but with the girls I am. And that, for now, is enough.

I will return them to school Monday morning, and Cynthia will pick them up Monday afternoon. After that, I cannot say. I will be there to pick them up Wednesday afternoon, as per the spirit of our agreement. But regardless of whether or not they are there, it seems very likely that I will have my day in court. And if the gods are truly just, to smite will reenter our modern english lexicon.

Darryl